Lindsay White Wins Best Singer Songwriter

Local Songwriter Honored at 27th San Diego Music Awards

Tuesday, March 20, 2018 - San Diego, CA

On Monday, March 19 at The House of Blues San Diego, local musicians gathered for the 27th San Diego Music Awards. Lindsay White, who is currently promoting her 2017 release Lights Out, earned top honors in the Best Singer Songwriter category. This was her first nomination and win as a solo artist. (She received three prior Best Local Recording nominations with former folk/pop duo The Lovebirds).

With influences ranging from Bob Dylan to Ani DiFranco, Lindsay White's songwriting has earned recognition from Telluride Bluegrass Festival, Kerrville Folk Festival, Guitar World, and American Songwriter Magazine. White's latest solo album Lights Out debuted at #2 on the iTunes Singer Songwriter charts and was selected as the #1 album of 2017 by Global Texan Chronicles. She was also included on After Ellen's recent list of "15 Lesbian, Bi and Queer Musical Artists You Need To Know."

When she's not touring and recording, Lindsay White also hosts a monthly Instagram Live series called Sunday Best, where she shares songwriting and music marketing tips. For more information, visit <http://www.lindsaywhitemusic.com>.

"The bittersweet, sincere vocals of Lindsay White make her sound like the lovechild of Hope Sandoval and Regina Spektor - and we love it." Curve Magazine

"White sings with a familiar-sounding voice that blends folksy charm with a taste of the husky blues vibe of early Ricky Lee Jones. This enables her to convincingly give the songs everything from a light pop-folk treatment to a rock growl." San Diego Troubadour
